Ford says US can't pay transit bill

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — President Ford said today the federal government has a "legitimate and major role" to play in assisting urban transit systems, but federal taxpayers "just can't afford to pay for the whole package."

In an address prepared for the sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation, Ford said he supports using a limited portion of federal transit funds for mass transit operating expenses under the $11 billion House-passed bill.

Boston parents boo Ted in protest

BOSTON (UPI) — Angry white Boston school parents today booed, threw eggs and tomatoes at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., during a rally staged by 6,000 parents to protest a federal desegregation order for the city's schools which takes place Thursday.

Kennedy appeared at the Government Center rally and was immediately booed by the crowd. They turned their backs on the senator, faced the John F. Kennedy Federal Building and sang "God Bless America."

Clerides oppose Turk refugee plan

By United Press International

President Glafkos Clerides today opposed a Turkish plan to transfer Turkish Cypriot refugees from British bases in southern Cyprus to Turkey.

A spokesman for Clerides said: "Turkey seems to be interested in using its territory as a transit station for these people who will then be moved to the Turkish-controlled areas of Cyprus with the aim of altering the population composition in these areas. This is simply unacceptable with the Cyprus government will never allow it."

TWIN FALLS — Evel Knievel tried — but failed — to conquer the Snake River Canyon with his steam rocket in the dust and wind late Sunday afternoon.

But, Knievel said later, "to lose a beautiful canyon and river is not to me a real loss."

The rocket fired at 3:44 p.m. about 20 minutes later than scheduled, in front of a jumpsite crowd estimated at one-fifth the size expected — about 10,000 people. Perhaps another 10,000 watched from Shoshone Falls, along the rim and from rooftops.

A mechanical malfunction apparently caused the drogue chute to open prematurely, even before the skycycle was off the ramp. Knievel reached an altitude of about 1,000 feet above the jump site when the main chute caught.

Then, as thousands of spectators, including Knievel's wife Linda, watched breathlessly and tensely the wind caught the chute and drifted the craft back toward the south canyon rim, down into the canyon and out of sight.

The vehicle hit the lava rocks about 70 feet above the water, according to Knievel's father Bob Knievel Sr., part of the rescue team.

Bumping down the lava rock walls, the skycycle, with Knievel in it, came to rest about 20 feet from the water's edge. Chief engineer Bob Truax said the craft hit with a G impact, enough to make a huge bump.

Knievel suffered only minor bruises and lacerations of the face, which reportedly were caused by his attempt to rip off his face visor. Apparently he suffered no internal injuries.

Knievel, who met with the press would not say whether he would try the jump again. But according to an engineer, Knievel said immediately after the rescue, "Let's find the problem, and do it again."

'Act of mercy' reopens wounds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said he pardoned Richard M. Nixon as an act of mercy and to bind the nation's wounds, but the decision prompted an "angry" protest today against the President and talk of a renewed impeachment inquiry for Nixon.

Thousands of irate callers jammed the White House switchboard to complain about the pardon and in Pittsburgh, where Ford went to deliver a speech, he was greeted by several hundred protesters chanting "Justice died, Justice died," and "Prosecute Nixon, Prosecute Nixon."

His friend and press secretary, J.P. Terhorst, resigned as "a matter of conscience," and representatives and senators had strong reactions almost certain to end his "honeymoon" with Congress.

Ford signed the document at noon Sunday. It was a "full, free and absolute pardon unto Richard Nixon for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon, has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from Jan. 20, 1969 through Aug. 9, 1974."

In San Clemente, Calif., Nixon accepted the pardon, saying, "No words can describe the depth of my regret and pain at the anguish my mistakes over Watergate have caused the nation and the presidency."

He said he was wrong in not acting "more decisively and more forthrightly" but the former President did not admit breaking the law.

White House officials denied that there had been a deal.

"I know there was none," said L. William Seidman, a close Ford friend from Grand Rapids. But the Chicago Tribune said today there had been a "six-part package" depending on Nixon's statement.

Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski now will not be able to seek an indictment against Nixon. Six months ago, a grand jury had voted 19-0 to call Nixon a co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up, but he was not indicted.

Security plan fails

TWIN FALLS — Security measures planned for Evel Knievel's jump broke down Sunday, permitting crowds to rush to the canyon rim and restricted areas.

Apparently no one was seriously injured during the mass movement toward the edge of the chasm.

Knievel's promoters outlined security provisions before the jump, but few were realized during the event Sunday.

Plans called for more than 100 security guards — even 200, if necessary — to patrol the rim area between the line of chain-link fencing and snow fence, but apparently not even one security man ever patrolled that area.

Crowds on the west side spectator area broke down the snow fence and filled the area between the fences hours before the jump was scheduled. And east side crowds casually flattened the snow fence in their area minutes before the jump. No visible attempt was made to remove the crowd from the inner fence area.

Hastily hired security men, members of hikers groups from Colorado and California, tried to patrol the area beyond the chain-link fence. But a rowdy and hostile crowd gathered at the gate to the press compound reduced the numbers of guards available for the canyon rim. The press area was ultimately opened to the crowd, and the fence there was flattened.

Then, after Knievel's rocket fired and was drifting down toward the canyon, the crowd simply pushed over the chain-link fence and ran toward the rim. Most of the guards, still patrolling the rim area backed off. A few guards backed the crowd to move back, but were ignored.

On the west side the crowd needed only a few seconds to flatten completely the snow-fence high fence. Hundreds of people quickly lined the canyon rim, standing a 10 to 20 feet deep, as recovery operations for Knievel proceeded.

Promoters also said the public address system would be used to warn crowds about the danger and urge them to "get over, get over." Few warnings were broadcast before the jump, but in many areas of the site the message was inaudible.

As the crowd pushed the fence down, no warnings or messages were broadcast. There was no answer to further requests for the crowd to move back from the rim.

Not all spectators rushed to the canyon lip, apparently reducing the danger of catastrophe. With a crowd of only about 10,000, far less than what was highly estimated, spectators numbers at the rim were smaller and people could gain a view of the canyon floor without pushing their way to the front of the rim-side mob.

Later, security guards were reportedly pushed off entirely from the launch area, leaving an angry crowd shouting for a party.

Lawmen clear canyon, site

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Officers were still at work this morning clearing the Shoshone Falls and Snake River Canyon jump site of campers following a near riot at the site last night.

Combined forces from the city and county were clearing campers out of Shoshone Falls this morning to make way for a major clean-up effort.

Sunday night a near riot erupted after a group of the campers at the jump site, believed to be unhappy over failure of Evel Knievel to provide free beer, began burning and tearing up concession stands, fences and automobiles.

Although reports of the event were still incomplete this morning, officers and witnesses said all concession stands were burned, some fences, telephone and utility poles and a car was moved to the jump ramp and set of fire.

Mrs. Tim Qualls said only about 100 or so persons were involved in the incidents and the about 500 campers still at the site Sunday night, planning to stay over because of heavy traffic, were orderly and helpful. She said none of the barns, corrals or houses on their property was damaged.

Some rolls of snow fence, owned by Snake River Canyon Enterprises, were burned. Witnesses said when firemen and fire equipment, hired by the firm, attempted to put out the fires hoses were kinked and firemen threatened.

Most security guards left the area either prior to the disturbance or during it. All of the toilets taken to the area for the week's influx of campers, were burned, witnesses said.

Her thought: Carson's watching

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — When Shirley Cothran walked down the runway as the Miss America before over 80 million television viewers, the only thing she could think was "Jeepers! Johnny Carson is probably watching me."

Miss Cothran, 21, of Fort Worth, Tex., laughed Sunday about her nervousness during the nation's largest beauty contest. Each time she went before television, she said she repeated a little prayer.

"I thought, 'Lord, just help me not to trip and fall and to do my best,' the 36-23-35 beauty said. During the preliminaries, she won a trophy in a bathing suit contest."

Miss Cothran, a teetotaler and devout Baptist, said she had never wanted to be a marionette, because "I believe my body is the temple of God, and I wouldn't want to harm it."

She said she does not smoke and has never taken a drink in her life — "I don't even like the smell of alcohol."

Miss Cothran said when she was crowned Sunday night she thought about television personality Johnny Carson because he, along with Pat Nixon, was one of the persons she most admired.

"Before the talent competition, I tried not to think of those millions of people watching. I thought, 'Jeepers! Johnny Carson is probably watching me. I didn't think of anyone else but Johnny Carson,' she said."

The new Miss America, who entered as Miss Texas, favors legal abortions for rape victims or when the life of a mother or child is at stake, and she supports the Equal Rights Amendment.

But she said she would "rather not deal with questions about amnesty for draft evaders or about other aspects of the women's movement."

Asked if she was a feminist, she replied:

"I enjoy being a woman. I thought I am very feminine in my own way. I enjoy putting on a pair of cut-off jeans and pulling my hair in a pony tail."

She said President Ford is "in the most exciting position" in the nation. She said former First Lady Pat Nixon was the woman she most admired, and Miss Cothran replied "yes" when asked if she sympathized with Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon.

Miss Cothran said she will delay plans to study for a Ph.D. in guidance counseling to make a year of personal appearances for the pageant. She will earn over $75,000 during the year.

Miss Cothran will see very little of her boyfriend, Richard Barrett, 21, a senior of North Texas State University at Denton, Tex., in the coming year. She said she laughed when she told him backstage, "Now, you're not going to have any looks to carry back and forth to the library."

James H. Cothran, a security guard, and Miss America's father, said when "she was in school, she always liked to carry the flag."

Her mother, Frankie, said, "She was a good little church worker."

Miss Cothran is the third-

Question...

As principal beneficiary of a National Service Life insurance policy, my father elected to take the proceeds in monthly installments, although a lump sum settlement was available to her. She died before she received all the installments. Does the contingent beneficiary on the policy receive the unpaid portion?

Answer....

No, the remaining installments will not be paid to the contingent beneficiary. National Service Life Insurance (better known as GI Insurance) provides that any principal named beneficiary of an insurance policy who voluntarily elects to receive payments in installments instead of in a lump sum actually owns the entire amount payable. The contingent beneficiary is thereby excluded from any present or future ownership under the insurance contract.

Nixon can destroy tapes

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon and the Ford administration have reached an agreement under which the former president will ultimately be permitted to destroy the White House tape recordings that led to his downfall.

The agreement, which was announced Sunday by the White House, also provides that all of Nixon's presidential papers and tapes will be preserved for three years for possible use in court cases arising out of the Watergate scandals.

Nixon signed the agreement in San Clemente, Calif., on Friday. It was countersigned Saturday by Arthur F. Sampson, administrator of the General Services Administration.

"Philip W. Buchen, counsel for the President, said at a White House briefing Ford had instructed him about ten days ago to resolve the controversy over the White House files so the administration would not find itself 'enmeshed for a long time' in jurisdictional disputes."

Although Buchen denied that the agreement was a condition for granting a presidential pardon to Nixon, he said the agreement was worked out by Benton R. Becker, a Washington attorney acting as an accompanying legal opinion from Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe — while providing a number of safeguards because of the unprecedented circumstances of Nixon's departure.

Buchen acknowledged that historians may well protest against the destruction of the tapes — as they have when other former presidents have been found to have "sanitized" their files — but he asserted that the tapes probably "should not have been made in the first place."

In most instances, the recordings, made through microphones secreted in the Oval Office and elsewhere, took place without the knowledge of those talking to Nixon. Much of the case built against Nixon by the House Judiciary Committee was based on recorded conversations concerning Watergate.

Saxbe said in his opinion that if documents or tapes were subpoenaed in connection with Watergate or other legal proceedings they "must be produced" by the government.

"Of course," he continued, "both the former President and the government can seek modification of such subpoenas and orders, and can challenge their validity on constitutional or other grounds."

Scoop raps reactor offer

(C) New York Times Service
ATLANTA — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called on the Ford administration "to move at once" if it considers the offer made by the Nixon administration to supply nuclear reactors to the Middle East.

Jackson, a member of the joint committee on atomic energy, termed the offer "a most unfortunate legacy" of the last administration.

The senator told 2,500 delegates attending the annual session of the 60th annual convention of the Huddell's women's Zionist organization of America, "There is no way adequately to safeguard a 600-megawatt reactor against Egyptian expropriation."

"The reactor," he said, "would likely contain enough weapons-grade plutonium for a significant number of nuclear weapons. The possession of such a quantity of plutonium as a byproduct of reactor operation would expose the United States to blackmail and coercion."

The United States has made a similar offer of supplying Israel with a reactor. Experts have pointed out, however, that Egypt could purchase plutonium from other countries that have nuclear reactors, such as Japan, Sweden and France. This option is not

Ulster workers plan walkout

BELFAST (UPI) — Militant Protestants have ordered their followers to stockpile canned food and other emergency supplies in preparation for a new province-wide general strike. Protestant sources said today.

They said the Ulster Workers' Council, which led a 10-day strike in May to topple the British-installed provincial coalition government between Protestants and Catholics, planned a new walkout to block any fresh attempt to impose another administration.

As the representative of the majority in Northern Ireland, the council claims the right to select the government.

At the same time, the British Army today warned residents of Northern Ireland to watch out for booby-trapped bait point pens.

An Army patrol searching a housing estate in Londonderry Sunday discovered a pen containing a detonator, and an Army spokesman said:

"It was rigged so that anyone who pushed the button on top of the pen would have set off the detonator and blown off several fingers. If explosives had been packed with the detonator, the blast could have blown your arm off."

"More pens like this could be around, and people should watch out."

Similar devices have been built in the past by the illegal Irish Republican Army.

"Five years of violence" involving Protestants, Catholics and security forces have taken 1,069 lives.

The latest deaths came during the weekend. Three suspected Protestant gunmen fleeing a bank robbery in north Belfast Friday shot and killed a police inspector who tried to stop them.

Suspected gunmen of the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, firing a British Army patrol from the grounds of an old people's home, shot and killed a woman passerby Saturday at Dungannon, 40 miles west of Belfast, the army said.

Security forces warned of a possible upsurge in bank robberies by extremists from both sides following the heist in Belfast and two bank holdups the same day in Drogheda, 70 miles west of Belfast, blamed on the IRA.

Security sources said the holdups indicated both sides are running out of money. "They need the money to buy arms and ammunition and the quickest way to replenish funds is to rob a bank," a police source said.

Two police cars collide

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two police cars racing to the same shooting incident from opposite directions with red lights flashing and sirens blaring collided early today. Four officers were injured, including two who were hospitalized in serious condition.

Drivers of both squad cars were responding to a shooting incident in the Harlem section of Manhattan.

Defense ministers bargain for arms

PARIS (UPI) — Defense ministers of four North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners shopping for fighter planes in what has been described as "the arms sale of the century" made plans today to head for Washington to compare American and French offerings.

Defense sources said the group will travel to Washington Sept. 13 to see what the American market can counter to the French bid. The ministers were in Paris over the weekend to discuss the French-Mirage F1-M55 plane with Defense Minister Jacques Soufflet.

During the talks, the French air force announced it would buy 40 of the Mirages-in-flight defense sources called a move to inspire the ministers' confidence and lower the planes' per unit cost.

The $50-plane deal could be worth $3.5 billion.

The four countries —

Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Norway — are seeking a plane to replace their aging U.S. F-104 Starfighters built by Lockheed. The chief competitors are the Dassault-Breguet Mirage and two U.S. fighters, the Northrop Cobra YF-17 and the General Dynamics YF-16.

The defense ministers are still undecided on which plane they want for their NATO forces. They said they would make a firm decision by the end of the year.

Current reports in military circles suggest the Dutch lean toward the Northrop Cobra while the Belgians prefer a European plane.

But the contract is still very much up for grabs, sources said. The ministers are expected to press the U.S. Air Force to buy either of the American planes for its own use when they go to Washington to lower the per-unit price tag, the sources said.

Pardon brings mixed reactions

By United Press International Foreign governments withheld comment today on the full pardon granted former President Richard Nixon, but newspaper reaction was mixed.

Spokesmen for governments of Britain, France, and West Germany all gave the same "no comment" to President Ford's decision, defining it as an internal affair of the United States.

The state-run Tass news service of the Soviet Union reported the news without comment. But for the first time in its barbed coverage of what it has labeled the "scandalous Watergate affair," the Tass report published today gave the first indication the Russian people that the former President may have broken the law while in office.

Newspapers the world over, however, headlined the news. Some of their editorial reactions were blunt.

The Liberal Copenhagen newspaper Politiken said: "If Ford does not pardon others than Nixon he has written his own verdict over his presidential period; that he lets the smaller criminals hang and the biggest go. If Ford does pardon Nixon's co-conspirators it will be said that Nixon promised his accomplices pardon. And that President Ford kept his promise."

The London Daily Express said Ford had "made a good beginning by dispersing the clouds of fear and distrust which have darkened the presidency."

The Daily Telegraph of London said "the granting of pardon to Mr. Nixon could set as terrifying a precedent as his exposure and sacking has been a good one."

The Times of London said Ford was wrong to say his decision closes for good the Watergate book. "Even if the last chapter is missing it still needs to be read or it will have been written in vain."

A commentator on Radio Luxembourg serving France, called the move "a total pardon which gives Watergate to history and oblivion."

An analyst for the station Europe One said the pardon is a "risk provoking vehement protests in the United States." "Ford risked outright controversy, if not censure, and a quick end to the honeymoon period he has been enjoying as new President with the American people, the media and the rest of the world," the Manila Evening Express said.

In Tokyo, the Japan Times said it was "disappointed" in President Gerald Ford's decision to extend a blanket pardon to former President Nixon.

"Far be it from us to suggest what Americans should do about their ex-president, not to mention their political problems. But the fact remains that the U.S. does not stand alone in the democratic part of this world."

Although Pennsylvania is generally considered an industrial state, agriculture is its second leading industry, contributing more than $1.3 billion annually to the gross state product.

The Daily Telegraph of London said "the granting of pardon to Mr. Nixon could set as terrifying a precedent as his exposure and sacking has been a good one."

The Times of London said Ford was wrong to say his decision closes for good the Watergate book. "Even if the last chapter is missing it still needs to be read or it will have been written in vain."

A commentator on Radio Luxembourg serving France, called the move "a total pardon which gives Watergate to history and oblivion."

An analyst for the station Europe One said the pardon is a "risk provoking vehement protests in the United States." "Ford risked outright controversy, if not censure, and a quick end to the honeymoon period he has been enjoying as new President with the American people, the media and the rest of the world," the Manila Evening Express said.

In Tokyo, the Japan Times said it was "disappointed" in President Gerald Ford's decision to extend a blanket pardon to former President Nixon.

"Far be it from us to suggest what Americans should do about their ex-president, not to mention their political problems. But the fact remains that the U.S. does not stand alone in the democratic part of this world."

Editorials rap pardon decision

By United Press International Early U.S. editorial reaction to President Gerald Ford's decision to pardon Richard M. Nixon from prosecution in the Watergate coverup was mainly critical.

One newspaper, however, the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, called Ford's grant of a pardon "an act of courage that will ultimately benefit the country." It said, "Nixon's acceptance of the pardon implies an admission of guilt. So that there can be no attempt to distort the truth, either historically or for political purposes."

Mr. Ford should have required from Nixon an honest and forthright admission of his guilt.

The New York Times branded the pardon "an act of flagrant favoritism" and said Sunday's stunning unconditional pardon for ex-President Nixon will "firmly shut and seal this book" as President Ford hopes. On the contrary, the pardon, coupled with an agreement which may keep the controversial White House tapes and Presidential papers out of the hands of historians forever, can only result, in additional extended controversy."

The New York Times said Mr. Ford has now moved "suddenly and suddenly to the normal workings of justice. It is an act of flagrant favoritism. It can only outrage and dishonor millions of his fellow citizens who thought that at last the laws of this nation would be enforced without fear or favor. This blundering intervention is a blow to the President's own credibility and to the public's reviving confidence in the integrity of its Government."

New York Daily News: "We feel that in the fullness of time Mr. Ford's action will be accepted gratefully by the vast majority of citizens as the most compassionate, honorable and wise solution to an extremely vexing and difficult dilemma."

The St. Louis Globe Democrat: "No decent person wants Richard Nixon to suffer for the sake of suffering. But Ford has not cleared up the serious allegations and accusations."

Attorney General W. Anthony Park, campaigning for re-election in Lewiston Saturday, took a strong stand against construction of any more dams in the Hells Canyon area of the Snake River.

Park said, "We must preserve this last beautiful stretch of clear, free-running water. If it is destroyed, our children and grandchildren will only have pictures of the grandeur that once was there."

Lieutenant Governor Jack Murphy expressed pleasure Saturday over a court ruling ordering the Idaho Endowment Investment Board to open its records to public inspection.

Murphy, the Republican candidate for governor, said, "Idaho's stunning unconditional pardon for ex-President Nixon will 'firmly shut and seal this book' as President Ford hopes. On the contrary, the pardon, coupled with an agreement which may keep the controversial White

British election eyed for October

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson flew back to London today from a weekend visit to Queen Elizabeth in Scotland, and British newspapers said he informed her he will call new British elections for Oct. 10.

Wilson has headed a minority government since the last elections on Feb. 29, failed to give him a majority in the House of Commons. This time he hoped to win a new five-year mandate with a strong majority.

Without announcing a date, he told the annual convention of the 10 million member Trades Union Congress at Brighton Thursday that he will order an election "within weeks."

Wilson has summoned cabinet meetings Tuesday and Thursday.

With election fever growing, the small third ranking Liberal party published its own program for beating inflation the "issue" which political commentators "agreed" will dominate the election campaign.

The Liberal party document came out strongly in favor of legally enforceable curbs on both wages and prices — something flatly rejected last week by the Trades Union Congress as well as by Wilson himself.

The Liberals also called for special punitive taxes on businesses which push prices unreasonably high and on workers who win excessive pay hikes.

Time running out for 93rd Congress

By CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY
WASHINGTON — Time is running short for the 93rd Congress. If things go according to schedule, it will slip into history in the next six or seven weeks.

Though the legislative pace was accelerated appreciably this summer as Congress faced the specter of a long impeachment ordeal, there still remains plenty of work that remains to be completed before that adjournment of the two-year congressional session.

First, there is the confirmation of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president. Both the House and Senate must approve the nomination this year, even if it means returning to the capital after the November elections. Nobody wants to do that, and it probably won't be necessary.

MONEY BILLS

And then there is the other "must" legislation, those bills that have to be enacted to keep the government running. Five appropriations bills — those that actually dole out the money to the different departments and agencies — remain to be passed.

The largest one, totaling more than $12 billion, is for the Defense Department. Both the House and Senate have passed bills, but differences in the two versions must be worked out in a conference committee.

Also awaiting action are bills providing almost $10 billion for the Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, Labor, and Health, Education and Welfare.

Work on the foreign aid appropriations bill hasn't even started yet, mainly because the legislation authorizing the controversial military and economic assistance has not passed the House or Senate. Congress must authorize these programs before appropriating any money for them and the $12 billion foreign aid bill is sure to spark robust debate in both chambers over such time-worn issues as military and reconstruction assistance for Indochina, aid for Egypt, Israel and other Mideast nations and military assistance to a number of non-democratic countries.

At the end of every Congress, there is a wild scramble to see which bills are pushed through at the last minute and which are forgotten. If a bill dies at the end of a Congress, new legislation must be introduced in the next Congress.

Two of the most notable victims of the end-of-session rush appear to be national health insurance and tax reform. Neither one has been reported out of a committee in either the Senate or House, and time is running short for legislation so complicated as the health and tax measures.

The House Ways and Means Committee, headed by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., was unable to make crucial decisions on health insurance in August and decided to take up tax reform instead when the House reconvenes. Mills says he favors a conference committee after the November elections because "we can't be home during that period of time with the problems we have in this country." But even if there is an added session, Mills still thinks it is possible — not probable — that the committee could agree on a bill.

TAX REFORM

It looks a little brighter for tax reform, but not much. Again, Mills is the key man, and he predicts the House could pass a tax reform measure by Oct. 1. But Mills does not have the control he used to, and his committee is fractured over such issues as how to tax the big oil companies and what to do about capital gains tax rates.

Even if the House does pass a bill, the Senate still must act and a conference committee would have to work out differences in the two bills.

"Most people realize that the odds of getting a tax bill are pretty slim," remarked one Finance Committee staff aide. "The odds are pretty slim, but it is a major tax bill in the month or two that's left."

Finally, there are those bills that hang in the balance. Trade reform, for instance, has been stalled in the Senate since last December. But in his first week in office, President Ford has nudged the Senate Finance Committee into action by breaking an impasse over tying trade concessions to the Soviet Union to an easing of Russian emigration restrictions.

Ford did more in one week than we had accomplished in the last three or four months," one knowledgeable observer noted. "He's acting like a President who wants to trade bills."

Both the House and Senate have passed bills to reform campaign financing practices, but the two versions are widely different. The conference committee that will consider the bills is expected to be long and difficult, having to work out compromises on a number of sticky issues.

A stalling action by House Administration Committee Chairman Wayne L. Hayes, D-Ohio, in appointing House members to the conference committee has delayed the start of work on the bill, but most observers feel it finally will be enacted.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

A bill to establish a consumer protection agency has been belted up by a Senate filibuster since mid-July. Three attempts to cut off debate and bring the bill to a final vote have failed; a fourth is planned soon after the Senate returns from its Labor Day recess.

The House passed a similar measure in April, but "Senate conservatives" led by Democrats Sen. J. Edwin of North Carolina and James B. Allen of Alabama successfully have blocked a final vote on the bill. They contend it would create an uncontrollable new bureaucracy to harass business and other federal agencies.

STRIPE MINING

After wrestling with the issue for its entire two-year session, Congress is likely to clear legislation regulating "strip mining" and the reclamation of mined lands. The Senate passed a bill last year, the House approved one in July.

The Interior Department has asked conferees on the bill to make extensive changes. Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton claims that many of the bill's environmental safeguards would result in unacceptable losses of coal production.

the original suggestion that the President consult Rinehart, one of the most successful business consultants in the nation, came from none other than Rep. Wilbur Mills, the influential chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. It was Mills who told Ford that Rinehart could be counted on to provide the "unvarnished truth" on the economy, no matter how disagreeable and no matter how much in conflict with the President's official advisers.

Indeed, the flamboyant Rinehart is widely regarded as the Peck's bad boy in the esoteric world of economists. His slashing critiques of administration economic policy have sometimes drawn him the ire of his record, particularly in the hapless years of Nixonomics, scarcely salubrious in comparison to Nixon's stable of advisers.

It was Rinehart who issued a private warning about Nixonomics to his high-paying industrial clients in July, 1969, in a manifesto titled "We Accuse." Despite Rinehart's bold charge then that the administration was "totally and utterly misunderstanding the inflationary bias in the economy," he continued to be used as a frequent Nixon adviser.

WASHINGTON — The danger of continuing factionalism over economic policy within President Ford's official family, with the Treasury Department still in a distinctly secondary role, was dramatized last week when Pierre Rinehart, a leading business economist, was summarily disinclined from the President's economic summit conference by decision of his staff.

What makes the snub to Rinehart inexplicable is the fact that President Ford himself had offered the invitation in a telephone conversation he had with Rinehart on Sunday, Aug. 25.

Moreover, according to informed White House officials, the president not only intended Rinehart to be included in the preliminary summit conference session of professional economists but also designated his chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig, as the presidential aide with whom Rinehart should keep in regular touch.

Yet, three days later, on Aug. 28, Kenneth Rush, Richard Nixon's economic coordinator just named by Ford as chairman of the new council on wage and price stability, informed Rinehart there would be no invitation. When the list of 21 invited economists was released by the White House the next day, Rinehart's name was not on it.

Rinehart, the president of Rinehart, Boston Associates, Inc., of New York, was accepting no calls from reporters on this bizarre and disturbing sequence of events. Yet, the untold tale of the President's telephone conversation with Rinehart and his subsequent snub threaten the White House with unpleasant political repercussions.

WASHINGTON — Man and boy, I have generally defended the FBI against the onslaught of ideological nuts but there are times when I wonder how many secret lunatics lurk in the cubbyholes of that splendid investigative agency.

Reference is to the case of Lori Paton, a 17-year-old high school student in Chester, N.J., who won her fight to force the FBI to destroy all records pertaining to a letter she wrote the Socialist Workers Party as part of her work in a social studies project. "From Left to Right," by mistake, she addressed the letter to the Young Socialists Alliance, which is affiliated with the Socialist Workers Party.

At about that time, a 12-day mailcover on the SWP was ordered by L. Patrick Gray, then acting FBI director. The SWP was listed on the now-defunct attorney general's list of subversive organizations. A postal inspector came up with Miss Paton's name, even as the SWP was shortly after FBI agent named John Devlin, of the Newark office, ran a credit check on the girl's father — for reasons he'll never be able to explain to me — and interviewed the Chester police chief. The chief reported, as if it were relevant, no member of the Paton family had a criminal record.

Finally, Devlin got around to visiting the school. There he was "surprised" to learn that she was a student and that the letter had been part of a class exercise. He recommended that "there be no official action taken," but the FBI placed the reports of the investigation in its files, and labeled one of the five file cards bearing Miss Paton's name "SM-SWP."

Andrew Tully

Judge James A. Conlan was correct in refusing to grant "class relief" aimed at preventing the FBI from continuing to conduct the type of surveillance that produced a "subversive" file on Lori Paton. He properly pointed out that no one investigated as a result of that mail cover had "such mild contact" with the Socialist Workers Party.

But how about those who, like Lori Paton, had no contact with the SWP?

How many of these who were cleared of suspicion are still listed on FBI file cards under the label "SM-SWP"? Too many, I suspect, because it's a lot of trouble to get a court order that an FBI file be destroyed.

But the district court judge could take care of that little matter by an executive order. He should take such action forthwith.

American summer report

(c) New York Times Service
Report on an American summer: we went to a house on an island and took two cats and were presently joined by guests with three cats, and soon after wards by flies in the carpets.

Mosquitoes fed upon us in early July, and later, Japanese beetles came and ate the roses. We moved through golden days and foggy nights of voracious feeding. A spider by the kitchen door ate the flies, worms ate the tomatoes, carpenter ants ate the house and local merchants cut the national budget.

We ate watermelon and bluefish and would have eaten lobster, too, but were driven from the lobster market by three-jawed owners of big pleasure boats whose powerful chubbooks drove the price to $3.45 a pound. Nights, when the roar of drugs gorging on the petunia beds was more than we could bear, we would walk to the marina where the big-pleasure-boat eaters anchored and we would watch them sit on their open decks looking at television in their Italian pants and dripping beer, and listen to them digesting the lobster.

Afterwards, we could go home and feed the mosquitoes and eat potato chips. Some days, we went to the beach and ate corned-beef sandwiches, but we did not go into the ocean because we had just read a novel called "Jaws" about a shark capable of eating whole bathers in a single bite, and we did not want to leave our mosquitoes bereft.

We gave up the beach in late July because the motor traffic on it was becoming scary. People who looked as if they had been in a car crash would speed to the beach with great humpers of victims and gun their vehicles over the sand to sharpen their appetites.

Their machines, devouring gasoline in the heavy sandlike bogs going at 40 m.p.h., became increasingly proprietary about the beach. We felt out-of-place there and unwanted, like sunbathers in the truck lane of the New Jersey Turnpike, so we stayed at home and turned on the television and ate peaches.

One night, at bedtime, we saw David Susskind interview Dick Cavett, and when we woke up next morning we saw Norman Mailer talking about political power, so we switched to radio and heard a New York policeman tell a newsman he had "witnessed numerous examples of nude sunbathers" at a New York beach. We ate pancakes and bacon and watched a cat eat catnip and debated what the world was coming to if cops were witnessing numerous examples of nude sunbathing instead of seeing a lot of people naked.

The usual summer had time set in about then. The car windshield cracked one day and had to be replaced, and then one of the guests broke his jaw and couldn't eat anything solid, and one of the cats had to go to the hospital for matted fur and have his hair combed at a cost of $1.50, and the local whiskey store raised the price of cheap white 50 cents a half gallon, and then the starter on the car had to be replaced.

It looked as though the eating was going to be slim for a while, particularly after the fish gut biter. Each day, bronzed New York white-collar men who had been the scourge of the deep in early summer would return from the sea fishless and despondent, and we would sit in foggy remembrance of them, reminding about great catches they had made in better times.

Afterwards, when their talk switched to tennis, we would wave and say some corn chips or an ice-cream cone and walk about the marina listening to the dissection of lobster, which was more stimulating than tales of well-smashed lobsters and failed backhands.

Watching the summer end was saddening. The shadows lengthened. The raspberries ceased to produce. The flies died and turned brown. The car repairs were completed and the remaining tomato looked as if they were thinking of turning pink before November. There was the melancholy smell of blackboard erasers on the early twilight. Repetitive ladies hustled over the island offering stunning cladippations at $10.00, complete with introductions to plumbers.

We took the car ferry to continental America, ate Norwegian cheese on Portuguese bread as we drove through Rhode Island, drank apple juice on the Cross Bronx Expressway, fed our children croquettes in Delaware and at home dreamt of next summer, which will be even better.

THE SUMMER PEOPLE ARE GONE — AND ALL'S WELL.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cuban puzzle is beginning to fall into place, and when all pieces mesh later this fall, the Organization of American States (OAS) will probably have ended its Cuban quarantine and the United States and Cuba could be beginning to patch up their differences. Perhaps the most interesting piece of this diplomatic jigsaw is the report by diplomatic sources in Washington that high-level Cuban and

American officials have met in Bern, Switzerland. White House and State Department officials said they had no knowledge of such a meeting. But their denial had the OAS in 1964. That campaign may succeed by Nov. 11 when Western Hemisphere foreign ministers, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, will meet Cuban matter, Mexico's Foreign Secretary Emilio O. Rabasa — who has been in close contact with both Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Kissinger this year — met with Ford and Kissinger.

Córdoba-Rice's Foreign Minister, Gonzalo Facio, was scheduled to be here this week but postponed his Washington trip after meeting with Rabasa, who had by then returned home.

Rabasa told newsmen here that the Ford administration had promised "a study very carefully" the lifting of the sanctions, in particular, and the whole range of problems connected with Cuba, in general.

Diplomatic sources here believe Ford and Kissinger suggested to Rabasa that the drive to lift the sanctions, which was by then gathering steam, should be slowed until after the November elections here — the first domestic political test for Ford.

Haig's future hazy

(C) Chicago Sun-Times — President Ford is prepared to use his authority as commander-in-chief to reinstate Alexander M. Haig Jr. as an army general despite strong opposition from the professional military. The Chicago Sun-Times has learned.

Although Pentagon officials have said that opposition by top Army officers would force Haig into private industry, White House officials and other Ford associates said the President wants his White House chief of staff back in uniform.

US-Soviet pact due?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson said Saturday the United States and the Soviet Union might be able to conclude an agreement by the end of this month that would permit more Soviet Jews to emigrate, thus clearing the way for extension of trade benefits to the Soviets.

But he denied a report that such an agreement had already been reached.

"I would hope that we can get it resolved this month," Jackson, D-Wash., said.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that an emigration agreement had been worked out by Jackson, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

"We have made good progress but it has not been finalized and until it is finalized I think it is inappropriate to come to any final conclusions," Jackson said.

"We have several things to complete before there can be an agreement," he added. "I hope that the problems that are outstanding can be resolved but they have not been resolved and until they are resolved I think it is premature to conclude that there has been an agreement."

Jackson said he still opposes most-favored-nation trade status for the Soviet Union until the emigration issue is resolved.

President Ford signs Nixon pardon

Ford's 'act of mercy' reopens 'Gate wounds'

Legal sources said it might help Nixon's six aides who face trial Sept. 30 for the Watergate cover-up. As one said, "I think you can't escape the fact that the No. 1 man among the team of top people at the White House got away free."

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., called it "the only decent and prudent course."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., complained that Nixon was being granted "a pardon while his subordinates are being sent off to prison."

Ford had told a news conference last Wednesday that a pardon for Nixon would be "untimely and unwise" before any charges had actually been brought.

His old law partner and legal counsel, Philip Buchen, told reporters Sunday that the President apparently made the decision sometime last week.

Buchen said he checked with Jaworski and found there were "no time bombs" in the form of legal charges.

Last Thursday, Ford authorized Washington lawyer Benton Becker to go to San Clemente and, Buchen said, "to advise the former President that President Ford was intending to grant a pardon."

Becker, according to the counsel, brought word of Nixon's plan to issue a statement, but the wording was left open. Buchen said he considers Nixon's statement "an act of contrition."

Ford had deliberately chosen Sunday for his statement—instead of Saturday, at the summit near his old home in Alexandria, he went to Holy Communion at St. John's Church, where Presidents since James Madison have worshipped.

As he came out, a reporter asked what he would be doing the rest of the day.

"You'll find out shortly," he answered.

The White House press office was already summoning reporters and telling them, off the ground rules were strict: no questions, no photos, or film—no one was to go on this very day to Nixon's residence in the Oval Office.

The American people saw a solemn, formal President sign the pardon for his predecessor.

He had not told his wife, Betty, of his decision. Through an aide she later said Ford "gave a good deal of thought" to the pardon.

His statement was full of references to prayer and conscience, to the tragedy of Nixon and his family, to the Watergate allegations that "hang like a sword over our former President's head, threatening his health as he tries to reshape his life."

Buchen said Jaworski had predicted a Nixon trial could not begin for at least nine months.

"I am compelled to conclude that many months and perhaps more years will have to pass before Richard Nixon would obtain a fair trial," Ford said.

"During this long period of delay and potential litigation, ugly passions would again be aroused. And our people would again be polarized in their opinions."

"And the credibility of our free institutions of government would again be challenged at home and abroad."

Ford said he was not relying on public opinion polls—such as the Gallup Poll conducted for Newsweek which indicated that 56 per cent of a telephone sample were opposed to granting Nixon amnesty and 23 per cent favored a pardon.

"I do believe, with all my heart and mind and spirit, that I, not as President, but as a humble servant of God, will receive justice—without mercy. If I fail to show mercy."

Then Ford went to play golf as the White House switchboard began ringing with "angry calls, heavy and constant," of those opposed to a pardon.

At his vice-presidential nomination hearings he had been asked about pardon and predicted "the country would stand for it."

Many Republicans supported the move, but some joined Democrats who said the action was unwise, unequal justice instead of the equal treatment Ford said he was seeking.

One Capitol Hill Republican said: "Ford knows full well that by doing this he's bled his honeymoon dry."

As he resigned, TerHorst said he could not "credibly defend" Nixon's pardon "in the absence of pardons for those who evaded the Vietnam war in good conscience and former Nixon aides who have suffered under the same Watergate" troubles.

"I deeply regret Jerry TerHorst's decision," said Ford. "I appreciate the fact that good people will differ with me on this very difficult decision. However, it is my judgment that it is in the best interest of our country."

'Gate trial' proceeds

(C) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON—The Watergate trial of six of Richard M. Nixon's former associates will proceed on schedule Sept. 30 and Nixon probably will testify.

Nixon could be held in contempt of court if he refused to appear as a witness or produce tapes under subpoena by the defendants or special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Nixon's testimony—along with anticipated wide-ranging cross-examination—may be the nation's last chance to get the full story of the Watergate cover-up, told under oath.

"Although Nixon's pardon does not affect the charges against former aides H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell and three others, they may use Ford's action in arguments to the jury for acquittal."

"If the boss goes free, why punish his underlings?" is the way one defense attorney posed the question that might be presented to the jury.

The pardon almost certainly blocked an indictment of Nixon on obstruction of justice charges by the federal grand jury that indicted the six men facing trial.

Gem politicians divided on Nixon pardon

By United Press International

Idaho politicians were divided in their reaction to President Ford's pardon Sunday of Richard Nixon for all offenses the former president committed or may have committed while in office.

Lieutenant Governor Jack Murphy, the Republican candidate for governor, supported the President's move. J. Ray Cox, Democratic nominee for First District Congress, expressed reservations, and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, declined to commit himself either way.

"While we may not agree with all of President Ford's actions, it is my intention to offer whatever support I can to him," the Senator, must extend to today's decision," Murphy said.

"President Ford's decision is another indication of our new chief executive's ability to face a tough decision and make it. I am proud of the forthright and direct manner in which he faced this tough political issue," he said.

Cox called Ford's actions "somewhat premature in that the actions would appear to close the books on this unfortunate American tragedy with chapters left forever unwritten."

"To pardon in advance of a prosecution, will raise some serious legal questions and I am concerned as to whether such action would apply to crimes which may have been committed and which presently are unknown."

In granting the pardon, Ford said Nixon and his family had "suffered enough and will continue to suffer no matter what I do."

Cox said, "There are some 30 other families associated with the Watergate affair in which there has been not only similar suffering but also convictions and prison sentences imposed."

"Perhaps the public interest would have been better served if the final chapters had been written in the courts; then the President could have closed the books with this act of mercy," Cox said.

Church said, "The President alone has the power to pardon. His decision to exercise that power to grant Mr. Nixon full pardon is unquestionably within his rights as President of the United States. The matter is closed."

George Hansen, the Republican candidate for Second District Congress, said, "On the balance, it was probably the right thing to do and a timely and brave course of action on the part of the President. From the national point of view it's a good thing to help bind up the wounds and allow us to move forward."

"It does raise a problem of equal treatment under the law," Hansen said, "of accountability or ever finding the real answers and degree of guilt, if any."

"But it also demonstrates that laws are hopefully made with an eye on the differences between people and their circumstances and they must provide for exception, where warranted, by the judgment of fair-minded men."

Justice must be tempered with reality and with mercy and with rehabilitation, not with revenge in mind," Hansen said.

Jaworski TerHorst challenge resigns unlikely press job

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Leon Jaworski, the special Watergate prosecutor, apparently has no plans to mount a legal challenge to the validity of the unconditional pardon that President Ford Sunday gave Richard M. Nixon.

According to a spokesman for Jaworski, "The special prosecutor 'accepts the decision,'" said John Barker, the spokesman, in a telephone interview. "He thinks it's within the President's power to do it. His feeling is that the President is exercising his lawful power, and he accepts it."

Barker added that Jaworski had not been considered in advance on the matter by either Ford or White House lawyers, and feared of the President's intention to act in Nixon's favor "less than an hour before the decision was announced."

Some lawyers, including Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, reacted by questioning the legal and constitutional validity of a presidential pardon conferred before an indictment has been brought or a conviction obtained.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — J. P. TerHorst, who had promised to be candid in his job as White House press secretary, quit Sunday because he could not support or defend President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon.

"I felt in good conscience I could not support his decision," TerHorst told UPI, "because I didn't know how I could credibly defend it in the absence of pardons for those who evaded the war in Vietnam in good conscience and former Nixon aides who have suffered under the same Watergate" troubles as Nixon.

"Mercy like justice, must be even-handed," TerHorst said.

"I just concluded that President Nixon is no more deserving of a pardon than people in lesser stations of life," he said.

TerHorst, 52, was the first Ford appointee and the first to quit.

From his first day as press secretary, TerHorst, by statement and example, was candid with reporters and aggressively carried out Ford's pledge to have an "open administration."

The former Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, who reported on Ford during his quarter century as a congressman, said he told the President of his decision Sunday morning about an hour before the President's unexpected announcement of the pardon.

Afterward, Ford spent 45 hours playing golf in suburban Maryland, and by the time he returned to the White House in early evening, TerHorst was gone.

Pardon sparks criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Political leaders generally expressed disquiet about President Ford's pardon Sunday of former President Nixon. Many criticized the timing of the announcement and the effect it would have on a nation rebounding from the Watergate scandals and a presidential election.

Democrats overwhelmingly opposed granting of the pardon, many bitterly, and were joined by a large number of Republicans. Some from both parties praised the action, calling it courageous and aimed at bringing the country together.

But several critics contended Ford's action would hinder the full truth about Watergate and the cover-up.

Among those supporting the pardon were Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, and former Attorney General Elliot Richardson.

"I have a great deal of compassion for Nixon," said Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn. "But I'm afraid this may have opened up the whole Watergate controversy one more time."

He said the decision "might create public furor and the country doesn't need that right now."

Another member of the defunct Senate Watergate Committee, Sen. Lowell F. Weicker, R-Conn., said, "President Ford's pardon... is neither equal justice nor leadership in a government of laws."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the pardon "is premature and, I think, a serious mistake."

"It raises very serious questions about our systems of law, and about whether we have a double standard of justice in this country," Kennedy said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the pardon "can be cited as a precedent in trials all over the country and seriously challenges the premise that there is one law for the high and the low, the rich and the poor."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., whom Nixon defeated in 1972, said: "A person can wonder how the President

Emotional state cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's decision to pardon former President Richard Nixon came as soon as it did because Ford was told any delay would damage Nixon's emotional state, the Washington Post reported today.

The newspaper attributed its information to "sources close to the situation," and said at least two of Nixon's friends had "communicated to President Ford their belief that the former president was so emotionally depressed that he would have been unable to withstand a prolonged trial."

The Post said Nixon knew of Ford's intention to grant him a pardon at least since last Thursday.

Another reason for the quick decision by Ford, the Post said, was that it was that Ford made a political mistake in announcing he would wait for the legal process to finish before deciding.

Longtime Nixon friend Robert H. Finch was quoted as saying, "If he (Ford) was going to do it, this was the time to bite the bullet."

ATHENS (UPI) — Searchers from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence and Greek ships gave up hope today for all 88 persons aboard a crippled Trans World Airlines 707 jetliner that crashed Sunday in the Ionian Sea.

"We don't expect to find any survivors," said Amnon Kefauyannis, Greek deputy minister of transportation in charge of civil aviation who was in charge of all search efforts. Kefauyannis said that as of mid-morning, the Independence and a Greek vessel had recovered 17 bodies. He said they would be flown to Athens for autopsies before being handed over to next of kin.

A "maverick" Arab guerrilla group, said in Beirut a commando on a death mission bombed the Boeing 707, but the major Palestinian organization denied involvement by any recognized guerrilla band. Autopsies would indicate if the victims died in an explosion or the crash.

"We are still searching the area for other bodies/debris from the crash and whatever items we can find which can help with the investigation of the disaster," Kefauyannis said.

Athens airport officials disclosed earlier reports that life rafts had been spotted in the choppy waters of the Ionian Sea between Greece and Italy where the plane went down.

The officials said the plane plunged into the sea late Sunday morning soon after a stopover in Athens. The pilot reported trouble and said he was trying to land on the Greek island of Corfu.

TWA reported 79 passengers and nine crew members aboard Flight 941, which was also scheduled to stop in Rome on the flight from Israel to the United States.

A spokesman said 21 of the passengers gave the airline U.S. addresses, but it was uncertain whether all were Americans. He said 34 passengers, including two infants, were traveling to New York.

An air traffic controller said the pilot reported trouble in his last radio contact with Athens airport. "He then said he would try to make it to Corfu because one engine was on fire," he said.

Officials at Corfu airport, which has the only runway in the arch able to handle big jets, alerted firefighters for an emergency landing.

In Beirut, a guerrilla group calling itself the Arab Nationalist Youth Organization, for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the crash.

Child's prayer

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, Calif. (UPI) — It may have been just plain luck that kept Evel Knievel from splashing into the Snake River.

On the other hand, while the daredevil cyclist was on his way down, he may have had a little help from way up.

Four-year-old David Bacon was asked Sunday to say the closing prayer before the congregation of the Agoura Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons).

He said simply: "Heavenly Father, thank you for all our blessings, and we pray Evel Knievel doesn't crash into the water. Amen."

Uprooted crop

Carmen smashes fields

A FIELD of sugarcane is uprooted by wind near an abandoned farm-house in Lafayette, La. It is feared that the strong gales of hurricane Carmen, which hit the southeast coast of Louisiana, may have damaged this year's crop that was to have been one of the best in years. (UPI)

LAKE CHARLES, La. (UPI) — Hurricane Carmen smashed through the lush sugar fields of Louisiana this weekend and destroyed most of the crop before it wound down to a 35-mile-an-hour rainstorm drifting across Texas.

Gov. Edwin Edwards toured the stricken area Sunday and estimated crop-related losses alone at $400 million. One death was attributed to the storm.

"What's doubly bad about this is that this particular crop was badly needed for the sugar of our country," Edwards said.

The farmers were "all looking at this year and all of a sudden this hurricane comes and dashes their dreams," the governor said.

As he spoke children paddled their canoes up and down the flooded road separating Bayou Lafourche from their homes.

The governor said a presidential disaster declaration could be beneficial to Louisiana sugarcane growers and sugarcane men but not to sugar cane growers.

The main damage seems to be to the sugar cane crop," he said. "It looks like 75 per cent of it is damaged beyond repair which means an economic loss to the farmers of about $100 million."

This is multiplied by four times to get the impact to the total economy."

Carmen whirled off the Louisiana coast in the Gulf of Mexico virtually stalled for hours Saturday night before chugging ashore about sunrise Sunday.

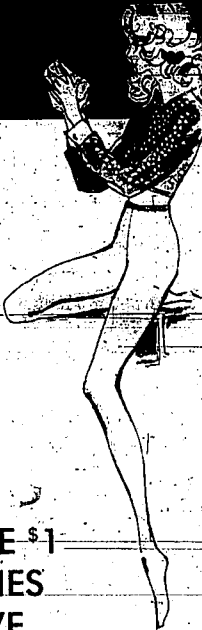

Its gusty 180 mph winds weakened immediately over the marshy "countryside" but flooding rains fell for hours.

An estimated 100,000 persons from Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama fled inland ahead of the storm, A. Melder, La., utility company repairman said.

"It's very encouraging to see the 'tide' go down this way. We're going to need a little luck and a lot of grace from the old man up stairs."

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Oswald: "Gadgets are great help in World's championship slam bidding. But most of the time common sense bidding, plus a few simple conventions like Blackwood, will do the trick."
Jim: "I have a hand right here. I watched a very gadget-minded pair get to six after South opened with a weak two-bid. They were very proud of their method which involved an asking bid in hearts."

Oswald: "Asking bids were invented by Ely Culbertson in 1936 and abandoned by him in 1938. An asking bid is artificial and asks partner about his holding in a specific suit. It works beautifully every year or so."
Jim: "The bidding in the box shows standard American getting to the same spade slam. North opens in third seat; jump rebids in his suit; raises spades to four; and leaves the rest to South."
Oswald: "It requires a little faith in partner for South to go on but he should. South has a perfect hand for Blackwood after North's very strong bidding and can bid the slam confidently after North shows three aces."

DEAR ABBY: Chester and I were recently married. We received a lovely powder bowl and matching candlesticks from Cindy and Paul, who are close friends. They came from Cindy's father's jewelry store and looked very expensive. Chester and I are furnishing our apartment in English country, but this gift is ultramodern and would never go with our decorating scheme. Rather than bury it in a cupboard, I called Cindy and told her the truth. She seemed to appreciate my frankness and said: "I will pick it up tomorrow."

She picked it up and seemed pleasant enough, but imagine how we felt when a few days later the following ad appeared in the local paper:
"Will sell at a sacrifice, returned wedding gift of Chester and Yvonne Douglas. Beautiful modern powder bowl and matching candlesticks. Cost $70, will sell for $35." Then the name of Cindy's father's jewelry store, "The name of Cindy's father's jewelry store, we can't hold our heads up. This Canadian city is buzzing."
Do you think we were wrong in being so candid about the gift? And what do you think of people who would do a thing like that?

MAPLE LEAF READERS.

Returned gift advertised

DEAR READERS: Obviously you should not have been so candid with Cindy and Paul. They showed a shocking lack of taste in placing such an ad in the newspaper. Don't worry about the "talk." It will be about the tastefulness of your friends—not you!

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a 27-year-old man who refused to take to—or even recognize—any member of his immediate family on his own wedding day?
When his aunt tried to congratulate him, he turned away, saying, "Don't get lipstick on me." (The only words he spoke to any of us all day!)

He was so disgusted that instead of going to the reception, he changed my clothes, went downtown and returned the wedding gift I had bought for the couple. But then, I am only his mother.
HURT

DEAR HURT: The bridegroom could have been understandably uptight, nervous or preoccupied. And you could have been understandably sensitive and emotional. This would have been a good time for charity and restraint on both your parts.

DEAR ABBY: I was happy the councilman in my area voted against those kooks who wanted to go around naked on the beaches near where I live.
What's the matter with people today, anyway? Are they trying to make a big nudist colony out of our country? Don't we have enough trouble without letting those perverts and sex maniacs take off their clothes and run riot?
How do you stand?
DISGUSTED IN VENICE, CALIF.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Clothed. But nudity has little to do with immoral behavior. There are nudist camps for entire families, and there is nothing "immoral" about them.

LUCKY YOU finding a dress as slimming as this in time for that important meeting or party you've been planning.

Candlelight rites unite couple

TWIN FALLS — Cheryl Aldritt and Leon Howe were united in marriage August 30 in a candlelight ceremony at the Bethel Temple Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. J. L. Tankersley performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar of gold candelabra with white tapers, flanked by large baskets of white gladiolus accented with turquoise bows.

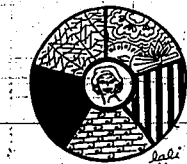

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Aldritt.

A Lovell Joy

YOUR COLORSCOPE, FALL '74

By Mary Sue Miller

In all fashion, few aspects can create as much loveliness for you as color. A flattering choice is based on an art principle: Complementary shades bear the same undertones.

Thus colors that enhance your skin bear a trace of its coloring. The possible exception is black, not considered a color. In terms of fall fashion, a few examples:

Blond Skin (fair, blue veining).—Midnight blue, teal, eggplant, vintage, wine, rose, mauve, blue spruce (blue green), steel, oatmeal, blackened brown, oyster white, matte black.

Brunet Skin (ochre tones, light to dark).—Plum, russet, brick, burnt orange, deep gold, loden (yellow green), cerise, camel, misty gray, tobacco brown, ivory, black with color touches.

Titian Skin (pink to ruddy).—a contradiction, needs playing-down.—Midnight, navy, denim, blue, winter pastel blues, stone (grayed) green, taupe, blackened brown, steel, oyster white, dense black.

Beauty Tip: The same color theory applies to your makeup. Be guided by it. In the selection of lipsticks alone, your choice this season adds up to the scores of new shades that dovetail with wardrobe colors and your individual skin color type. There's no percentage in wearing a makeup or fashion shade that causes you to look spooky.

No regrets for Ohioan after Shoshone plunge

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Another daredevil faced the Snake River Canyon this week, surviving with three crushed vertebrae and no regrets.

Tom Rauckhorst, 21, Akron, Ohio, dove about 200 feet from the rocks on the south side of Shoshone Falls into a pool below Saturday afternoon; then climbed back to the top and rode a motorcycle to town to receive medical treatment.

Rauckhorst said from his hospital bed this morning that he did it "because I enjoy diving and do it as often as I can." He had no hesitations in making the dive. After arriving Friday night to see Knievel's jump, Rauckhorst checked out the falls Saturday morning and told those camped at the park he was going to dive.

"Somebody told me Sports Illustrated would pay me $2,000 to film it," he said. But "I wanted to go," he said, and without waiting for press coverage he leaped from the canyon with a crowd of people watching from the rim.

"It was a good dive," he said. "I watched the water come right up to me so I knew when to tuck. I passed out when I hit the water and remember waking up upside down. It was just instant. I started to kick. Didn't panic. I knew I'd make it to the top 'cause I was alive."

Rauckhorst said the sheer force of hitting the water at the speed built up from 200 feet made him pass out. When he woke up, he said he couldn't move his left arm and the wind was knocked out of him.

He made it to shore, sat awhile to catch his breath and climbed to the top where two campers, Adam Wong and Larry Oberstaller, took him to the hospital on their motorcycle. Diving "is a beautiful thrill; a natural high, a natural rush," he said. "I don't even consider getting hurt."

Any regrets? "I wish I knew how high it was — I would have done a different dive."

Rauckhorst said he began high diving about four years ago while visiting a cousin in Oregon. In one day he increased his diving heights to 50 feet on the Hood River. He planned to dive 100 feet into the Columbia River but was stopped by his cousin because of dangerously high winds.

He was to his way to Oregon for more diving when he decided to stop in Twin Falls for the Snake River Canyon jump. "It was a vacation and a destination," he said.

Rauckhorst doesn't consider fellow daredevil Evel Knievel as a hero in any way. "He's got guts, he's not crazy," he said with a shrug of his shoulders.

"I feel he chickened out," on Sunday's jump, he said. "He did everything wrong. The ramp was several degrees off."

He was to be fitted with a back brace this afternoon. Then, depending upon the condition of his back, he will begin diving again.

"If I can dive I will dive. I want to go to Acapulco some day and jump," he said.

Splash down

Engineers said pressure forced off the back cover of the parachute container, releasing the chute at the instant of takeoff. During the test firing several weeks ago, the chutes opened prematurely, but for different reasons, an engineer said. Engineers worried that Knievel would bail out. "We thought he was getting out . . . we yelled on the radio to stay in, an engineer said. Truax later said if Knievel had bailed out of the rocket, he would have been killed.

Truax told reporters Monday he had torn up the cheek Knievel had given him for designing the skycycle. He said Knievel had insisted on giving him the cheek, but he didn't feel he earned the money. The deal was to get him across the canyon, Truax said and he didn't do it.

A California man, walking from Shoshone Falls along Falls Avenue late Saturday night, was struck and killed in a car-pedestrian accident.

Sheriff's officers said Leslie Hugh Hursten, 30, North Hollywood, a professor of special shows, was killed as he and his wife were walking toward their automobile which had been left on Desch View Drive.

Hospital officials said Mr. Hursten was apparently killed instantly about 10 p.m. Saturday. Clayton Edwards, county coroner, said the man died of head injuries and was dead at the scene. He was struck by a pickup truck and camper also traveling west.

Knievel's wife, his three children and numerous relatives watched the launch from the canyon rim. Linda remained silent, according to an observer, during the takeoff, as relatives shouted "Oh, my God." When the skycycle disappeared behind the rocks, she ran to the edge, crying, "Where is it?"

Informed by a reporter her husband was alive, "she just grinned," the reporter said.

Knievel was rescued from his craft by his pilot Watcha McCollum and Bob Garrison, who were following the flight in a helicopter. Garrison reached the craft less than a minute after it set down. McCollum said, and unblinded Knievel. A boat crew then took Knievel by river to where a medical helicopter could set down and pick him up.

The rocket later rolled down off the lava rock, injuring a member of the boatmen's rescue crew, Dave Kirk of Jerome. Kirk was treated and released at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for injuries to the knee.

Knievel was calm and composed as he read a statement to the press Sunday evening. "There was no Truax failure, there was no team failure, there was no Knievel failure," he said. "If the rocket had landed in the water, Knievel said, "I would have drowned, but there was no failure there either because people were praying and God made the wind blow."

Idaho State Police this morning sealed off the Shoshone Falls Grade and urged campers to clear the area by noon.

As tourists packed their vans, City sanitation men glumly swept discarded beer cans and other debris out of ditches and piled it in the road, where it was scooped up by a loader.

The mood was quiet, except for the roar of motorcycles, almost sleepy. Some people voiced disappointment in Knievel's jump.

Trial to start

NEZPERCE, Idaho (UPI) — The second-degree murder trial of Dora G. Lawyer, 45, Kamiah, who is accused of shooting her husband last May, was scheduled to begin today in district court here.

Mrs. Lawyer is accused of shooting her husband, A.F. Lawyer, 51, with a handgun at their Kamiah home May 23.

TF rodeo winners named

FILER — A standing room crowd of 8,000 was on hand for the final performance of the Twin Falls County Fair Rodeo Saturday night.

A Restburg cowboy was the star of the evening when he rode a national finals bull, Typoon, to a 90-point mark. Benny Stoddard, a 29-year-old cowboy who's been riding professionally for six years received the highest marked ride of his career.

It was only the third time Typoon had been ridden. Stoddard won $935 for his efforts on the spinning bull.

A Twin Falls veterinarian, Dr. Bob Monroe, was clocked at 4.5 to win the second ground in steer wrestling. Going into the rodeo, Dr. Monroe needed to win only $85 to fill a

$1,000 permit and become a professional cowboy, a member of the Rodeo Cowboys Association.

He more than filled his permit by winning a total of $312.

The championship in the event was won by Tom Puryear, Norman, Okla., with a total 9.6 seconds on two steers. His share of the $14,000 purse was $770.

A Challis cowboy, serves as a big game hunting guide, won the championship in bareback riding with 142 points, scored on two horses. Royce Smith won $804.

In saddle bronc riding Jim Kelts, Consort, Alberta, Canada, took top honors by scoring two rides, each marked at 76 points for a 152.

Hewon $788.

The highest ride of the evening went to Larry Jordan, Roy, Mont., with 79 points on a bronc called Bay Window.

A Missoula, Mont., cowgirl rode away with the barrel racing championship and $335 by marking two near perfect runs totaling 35.6 seconds.

The capacity crowd saw a new Miss Rodeo Idaho crowned. The lucky girl will represent the state in the Miss Rodeo America contest in Oklahoma City in December.

Winner was Christine Doherty, Boise. She was the reigning Miss Hells Canyon Rodeo queen.

First runner-up was Betty Schnell, Rogerson, and second runner-up was Claudia Pence, Mackay.

Some fans felt cheated

TWIN FALLS — Some Evel Knievel fans felt cheated Sunday night through high prices and an unspectacular jump.

Others believed the event was glorious.

"This is the best time I've had for one hell-of-a-long time," Larry Johnson, Portwing, Wis., said. Johnson had no regrets he traveled half the country to see Knievel fail.

But W.Y. Lamb, Lafayette, La., had another idea. "We're used to rip-offs, but this is the first time we've come 2,500 miles to see one," he said.

"We came 2,000 miles and expected to see more than him going to the end of the ramp and falling over," Tommy Boman, Knoxville, Tenn., said.

"He didn't fail. He had a lot of people working for him," Bill Walsh, Bruceton, N.Y., said. "With all the experts working on the rocket, Walsh maintained, Knievel could have made it to the other side if he had wanted to. But, he said, it was "definitely planned" because such a jump would have been too dangerous. "I had a good time . . . The biggest disappointment was the $23 ticket."

Joe Pietraszko, New York, N.Y., said, "I'm glad that he's gotten out all right because that means another party's coming up . . . He's really a far-out man."

"It's sort of individuality, being super-free," Pietraszko said. "That's what really mattered. But he didn't make it. I was kind of sad . . . hopefully he's going to try again."

"He ripped everybody off," Dave Tidwell, Redding, Calif., said. "He promised free beer and a million dollar party. We get here and have to pay $25 to get in. Hell, you have to pay $10 for parking . . . We had the party. We had free beer. But everybody had to take it," Tidwell said.

"It was too expensive, man. That's the only thing. But it was a good time, sure," Ron McReedy, Vancouver, B.C., said.

Fire controlled

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Fire crews brought under control today a blaze that blackened an estimated 8,000 acres of range land five miles northeast of Mountain Home.

A dispatcher for the Bureau of Land Management said the 45-man crew controlled the blaze about 4:30 a.m. Four planes and two helicopters dropped retardant on the blaze, and several tankers brought in water to fight it.

Knievel imitation

HAVING better luck than his mentor, a Twin Falls boy leaps across garbage cans in imitation of Evel Knievel. During the weekend of Evel's canyon jump similar youthful feats were taking place throughout the Valley by Evel's admirers.

Backup reserve

NATIONAL GUARD troops were kept on duty through today as backup reserve for local city forces following disturbances late Sunday at the Evel Knievel canyon jump site. A total of about 600 guardsmen had been on alert during the weekend of the jump.

Player, Trevino locked in golf deadlock

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Masters and British Open champion Gary Player and PGA champ Lee Trevino battled through five holes of a sudden-death playoff Sunday at the Firestone Country Club in the 13th annual World Series of Golf before darkness forced the action to be postponed.

The two superstars, who finished the regular 36-hole tournament with 279-143 and 280-139 totals, are scheduled to resume their battle for the $50,000 first prize at 10 a.m. Monday.

Host pro Bobby Nichols, who won the Canadian Open, the first alternate tournament for World Series entrants, finished third with 72-71 and 69-72, while U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, who shot himself out of contention in Saturday's opening 18 holes, collected $3,000 for his 76-72-18.

Player, who carried a three-shot lead into Sunday's round, had a two-over-par 35-77 on the 7,100-yard

Firestone layout. Trevino, who at one time during the final 18 holes trailed by six shots, came in with a one-under 36-73.

Both Player and Trevino took turns saving themselves from defeat.

Trevino escaped with his life on the second hole of the playoff, a 239-yard par-3 15th, when he hit his drive into a clump of barberry bushes to the left of the green, the same bushes which cost Player a bogey in Saturday's first round.

Trevino, however, hit his second shot out of the middle of the bushes to about six feet from the pin and knocked in a par-saving putt.

On the third extra hole, the 625-yard (monster), Player's second shot went into the rough, and he barely cleared a pond fronting the 15th hole.

Player's third shot, Trevino was in regulation three but about 50 feet away, and had to make a four-footer for his par.

On the fourth extra hole, Trevino knocked his second shot into a bunker in front of the green and blasted out eight feet short of the hole. He made the crucial putt, however, for his par.

On the fifth extra hole, Trevino had a chance to win, but his 10-foot birdie putt just slid past the hole while Player got down in two from 55 feet away. At that time, PGA Tournament Director Jack Tuohill ruled it was too dark to continue.

Player started the day with a rush and appeared to be making a runaway.

The little South African, making his fifth appearance in the World Series of Golf, birdied two of the first five holes to go five shots under par.

Driving problems, however, caught up with Player on the sixth as he drove into the deep rough and had to lay up short, costing him a bogey five.

He parred both the seventh and eighth holes, but drove into a fairway bunker on the 465-yard ninth hole and to settle for another bogey and an even par-3 on the first side. At that time he still had a four-shot lead over Trevino.

Player hit a fairway trap on the 10th, costing him his third bogey in five holes. Meanwhile, Trevino got his first birdie of the day when he sank an 11-foot putt and the once big margin was all of a sudden down to two shots.

Trevino, gaining confidence, also birdied the 11th hole with a seven-footer, trimming Player's lead to just one shot and tied Player on the 13th when he was the only one of the foursome to get a par.

Trevino took the lead for the first time on the 14th hole when he knocked in a 12-foot putt for his third birdie in five holes. After both players bogeyed the par-3 15th, Player evened it again with a par on 16 as Trevino drove into the rough and took a bogey six.

Fezler reaches winner's circle in Southern open

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — Fezler, a 24-year-old pro from San Jose, Calif., a runner-up on the PGA golf tour several times, finally reached the winner's circle in the 11th annual Southern Open Tournament at the Green Island Country Club Sunday.

Fezler shot a final-round 65, five-under-par, that gave him a four-day total of 217, nine-under-par, and a one-stroke victory over veterans Bruce Crampton and J.C. Snead.

Fezler was runner-up to Gary Player in last year's Southern and said he had the feeling in his gut that he was going to win the first day he got into Columbus this time. Sunday's victory was worth $20,000 to Fezler, who now has earnings of more than $36,000 this year.

Although he failed to win in 1973, Fezler banked more than $100,000 and also finished second in the Jackie Gleason Classic and the Canadian Open. On his second-place finish this year was to Hale Irwin in the U.S. Open.

Sunday's second-place tie was worth $3,250 each for Snead and Crampton, both of whom rank among the leading money winners on the tour.

Mike Hill finished with a 275 total, all alone in fourth place, and collected $4,750. Tommy Aaron, who was tied with Ben Crenshaw and Snead going into the final round, saw his game fall apart early Sunday with a 278 total after shooting 74 Sunday. He won $2,311.

Crenshaw, the three-time NCAA champion from the University of Texas who won his first PGA start at San Antonio last year, was two-over-par 72 Sunday and finished at 277, tied with Phil Rodgers and first-day co-leader Jim Ferrell.

Fezler got off to a rousing start Sunday with birdies on four of the first six holes and making the turn at five-under-par 30. He also birdied the 10th hole by hitting a sand wedge to within three feet of the pin, but the same problems set in.

At No. 11, he hit into the right bunker and missed a 10-foot putt for a bogey. He parred the last seven holes but had to make some sensational shots to do so after missing five greens on the back nine.

At No. 13, the 19th Southern Open champion hit his tee shot into a bunker. He also hit his second shot into a sand trap but blasted out and barely missed a birdie when the ball tipped the cup.

"That was the shot of the tournament," Fezler said. "It was the turning point of the round. I could just as easily have made bogey at that hole."

Fezler also got a break at No. 15 when his second shot hit a woman in the crowd and bounced back onto his hard mud near the hole. He took a "free" drop and chipped up to save par again.

Fezler's longest putt of the day came at No. 4 when he ran in a 20-footer for a birdie-three.

Crampton, two strokes behind the leaders, made a terrific charge at the championship and posted three straight birdies on the back side to move within a stroke of Fezler. Snead had moved to within a shot by birdying two of the first three holes on the back side.

Sunday's final round brought the first favorable weather conditions of the tournament and the sun came out Sunday for the first time. Fezler, Crampton and Snead—who were playing together—headed for the 18th green.

Snead had a chance to tie on 17 when he knocked his tee shot about 10 feet from the hole and Fezler hooked to the left. However, Fezler chipped back out and almost holed out as Snead two-putted for par.

All three golfers reached the green in three on the par-five 18th hole.

Irish heavily favored against Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (UPI) — A muscular Notre Dame, rated one of the top five college football teams in the nation, will take on Georgia Tech in the national championship game, set for Saturday night. The Irish, coached by Ara Parseghian, are heavily favored over Georgia Tech for their nationally televised (ABC-9 p.m. EDT) clash here Monday night.

But Tech's new head coach, colorful Pepper Rodgers, isn't throwing in the towel. "Okay, maybe we can't beat Notre Dame," said Rodgers. "But they can lose to us. There's always the chance that if they take us too lightly, we can catch them off guard."

"I imagine that's been (Notre Dame Coach) Ara Parseghian's biggest worry, that if he has a worry, said Rodgers. "I'm sure he's been warning his team about the possibility of an upset."

On paper, an upset is quite unlikely. Although injuries and a violation of school rules sidelined a half dozen key performers, the Irish still have 14 starters and 13 second teamers back from last year's squad which posted an 11-0 mark, including a 24-7 victory over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

Rodgers, in his first season at the helm of his alma mater after stints at Kansas and Oklahoma, is a young man with an extremely young team that returned only nine starters from a 5-6 team. Further, Danny Myers, the former defensive back that Rodgers picked to run the offense, sprained his ankle in a scrimmage last week and Rudy Allen, a non-lettered junior, will be starting Monday night.

Notre Dame's offensive backfield led Eric Penick via an ankle injury still, has Tom Clements at quarterback and Art Best and Wayne Bullock at running backs with Al Samuel, who averaged nearly seven yards per carry last fall, moving into Penick's slot.

Tech will be starting two sophomores, David Sims and Pat Moriarty, at offensive halfbacks, and junior fullback Rick Hill, who earlier had not expected to play this season because of a severe knee injury last season.

Georgia Tech will be outwitted by wide margin by Notre Dame's offensive and defensive lines. The Irish defensive tackle, Mike Fanning and Steve Niehaus, both run backs.

The series between Notre Dame and Georgia Tech, two of the best known schools in the nation, began back in 1922, the Irish winning 132, Monday night will be their 23rd meeting and Notre Dame holds a 19-3 edge in the series.

Tech last beat the Irish, 14-10, at South Bend in 1959. Since then, Notre Dame has won five of the last six meetings, including a 24-7 victory over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

Boston regains share of division lead

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox are back in the swing of things both figuratively and literally.

The Red Sox, whose bats were dormant during a recently-concluded eight-game losing streak, came from behind for the second day in a row Sunday to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers, 8-6, and move back into a first place tie in the American League East with the New York Yankees.

And, for the second day in a row, a dark horse hero emerged. Saturday it was Mario Guerrero, who drove in the winning run with a two-run homer. This time it was 23-year-old relief pitcher Dick Pole.

Pole came in for Juan Marichal with one out in the first and the bases loaded and two runs in. He gave up a single to Tim Johnson to make it 4-4 but didn't allow a run or an extra base hit until the eighth. By that time the Red Sox were leading 8-4.

"I was nervous," said Pole. "They told me afterwards that my hands were shaking when I gripped the ball from Marichal. I'm always nervous but this time I settled down."

Pole, who has been riding the Boston-Pawtucket shuttle all season, picked up his first win of the year. The Red Sox now face the Yankees for a 17-game series at Fenway Park where they have not lost to New York since 1972.

"We all have to play baseball," said veteran Rico Petrocelli. "We have to do the same thing we've been doing all along. We lost eight straight games but we really didn't play that bad. We kept on fighting and we still have to do that. Look, we're not the 1972 Yankees but neither are they."

The Red Sox snapped a 4-1 tie in the sixth on a double by Doug Catlett which scored Petrocelli, who had walked and moved to second on a sacrifice. Guerrero then knocked in Griffin with a single to left to make the score 8-4.

However, it was a two-run homer by Dwight Evans in the seventh that proved decisive. Evans' homer was the first for Boston since Sept. 1, when Carl Yastrzemski hit one in Minnesota. The Red Sox have only had four home runs since the middle of August.

The Red Sox started their comeback in the fourth when designated hitter Cecil Cooper hit a sacrifice fly to score Juan Benitez. In the next inning, Tim McCarver looped a single to right and to second on another sacrifice by Griffin. A sacrifice by Guerrero moved the runners over, and after a walk to Tommy Harper loaded the bases, Benitez hit a sacrifice fly to make it 4-2.

Behind him, as of the moment, are Dennis Morrison with a year's experience and rookie Tom Owen from Wichita, State. Before Spurrier's injury, Nolan had to figure which of the two to keep and which to assign to the taxi squad.

David Day booted a 30-yard field goal near the end of the first half for a 3-0 edge. Jack Youngblood ran 54 yards with a recovered fumble on a special unit in the first half and had three 10-yard runs in the second half and had three 10 yards to Harold Jackson midway through the third quarter for Los Angeles' 17 points.

DETROIT (UPI) — Bill Freehan had four hits, including a grand slam homer, and knocked in seven runs, and Al Kaline added three RBIs Sunday to lead the Detroit Tigers to an 11-3 victory rout of the New York Yankees.

The loss dropped the Yankees into a first-place tie with the Boston Red Sox, whom they play in a two game series in Boston Monday and Tuesday.

The win went to Joe Coleman, who evened his record at 12-12, while Dick Tidrow suffered his 12th defeat against 11 victories.

Detroit scored an unearned run in the first inning and added five more in the third. The big rally started when, with two outs, Ron LeFlore singled, stole second and scored on Gary Sutherland's single. Al Kaline followed with a single and Ben Oglive walked in, load the bases for Freehan. The pitcher catcher then hit an 8-2 pitch over the fence in left-center for his 13th homer of the year.

Detroit scored again in the fifth on an RBI single by Freehan and added three more in the sixth.

Plunkett throws Patriots past Eagles 27-17

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Jim Plunkett threw five plays later to give the Patriots a 10-0 lead.

Smith hit a 30-yard field goal with 22 seconds left in the half. Vataha set up the point with a 30-yard end around to the Eagles 25.

New England held the Eagles on downs to start the second half then scored 70 yards in seven plays. Plunkett started the attack with a 22-yard pass to Reggie Rucker, then hit newly-acquired Craig Cotton for 23 yards. Sam Cunningham, who carried five times for 23 yards, scored on a two-yard plunge.

John Tarver finished a 43-yard, six-play march with a four-yard sweep left following a opening block from New England's final score.

The Eagles were scoreless until Tom Dempsey hit a 29-yard field goal with 15 seconds left in the third quarter. Roman Gabriel finished a 75-yard, nine-play drive with a sneak midway through the final period, and late in the game tossed a two-yard TD pass to Harold Carmichael.

Plunkett drove the Patriots 88 yards in 15 plays from the 10-yard line to the 20-yard line, finishing the march with a 12-yard slant in to Vataha. The Patriots converted five third-down plays on the drive, four on Plunkett's arm.

Art Moore's fumble recovery of a poor snap gave New England the ball at the Eagle 29-yard line two thirds of the way through the second period.

Interception lifts Broncos past Falcons

DENVER (UPI) — Cornerback Tom Hayes picked off Atlanta coach John McKay's 62 yards down the sidelines at the outset of the fourth quarter Sunday night to lift the Atlanta Falcons to a 20-17 victory over the Denver Broncos in the final NFL exhibition game of the year.

Denver had taken a 14-3 halftime lead with Johnson and Ray Odoms combining on an 81-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and Johnson driving Denver 81 yards with a four-straight complete passes to a touchdown as the first half ended.

Johnson's final loss in the drive was 32 yards to Billy Van Heusen, who was also the intended receiver on the pass Hayes picked off.

Atlanta went ahead 3-0 when it took the opening kickoff and ate up seven minutes and 20 seconds en route to a 20-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer.

Atlanta took control of the game in the second half, however, scoring 17 points. The Falcons opened the second half scoring with a 41-yard touchdown pass from Bob Lee to a 20-3 lead midway through the third period.

After Hayes put the Falcons ahead with his interception run, Mike-Mayer closed out the scoring with a 132 to play by a 20-17 field goal.

Denver had several chances to score in the fourth period, but failed. On the kickoff return, following Hayes' interception, following Hayes' interception, following Hayes' interception.

Oriole string ends at ten

CLEVELAND (UPI) — George Hendrick's two-run homer and solo shank by Tom McCraw and Charlie Spikes ended Baltimore's winning streak at 10 games Sunday as the Cleveland Indians downed the Orioles, 7-4.

Jim Perry, making his 31st start for the Indians, needed relief help from Tom Buskey in the seventh to pick up his 15th victory against 10 losses.

Buskey, who came into the game with a 1-1 record, threw to the plate hit Richard in the back allowing him to score with the only run of the game.

Hassler loses one-hitter

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Andy Hassler allowed only one hit—a third inning double by Lee Richard—but lost the game on a throwing error by third baseman Dave Chalk Sunday as the Chicago White Sox defeated the California Angels 3-0 behind the combined seventh-inning pitching of Jim Kaat and Terry Forster.

The unlucky Hassler, who survived a shaky first inning after loading the bases on a hit batsman—and two walks—surrendered a double to Richard to start the third inning and got himself into further trouble by hitting Bucky Dent with a pitch.

49ers may have lost Spurrier, season

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 1974 National Football League season may have ended for the San Francisco 49ers even before it started, but coach Dick Nolan doesn't see it that way at all.

In bowing to the powerful Los Angeles Rams, 17-7, Sunday the 49ers saw No. 1 quarterback Steve Spurrier bounce back this year into a contender for the NFC West title they won three years in a row before Los Angeles dethroned them in 1973.

"Red wasn't that much behind Spurrier that he can't step in and do a job for us," said Nolan. "I'm not that worried."

That may be so, but what happens to the 49ers if Red gets injured?

Behind him, as of the moment, are Dennis Morrison with a year's experience and rookie Tom Owen from Wichita, State. Before Spurrier's injury, Nolan had to figure which of the two to keep and which to assign to the taxi squad.

David Day booted a 30-yard field goal near the end of the first half for a 3-0 edge. Jack Youngblood ran 54 yards with a recovered fumble on a special unit in the first half and had three 10-yard runs in the second half and had three 10 yards to Harold Jackson midway through the third quarter for Los Angeles' 17 points.

Roof drives Twins past KC

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Light-hitting Phil Roof crashed a grand slam homer, the first of his career, in a five-run sixth inning Sunday to lead the Minnesota Twins to an 8-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Bert Blyleven, 44-15, gained the victory, but needed relief help from Bill Campbell.

Behind 3-1, the Twins loaded the bases in the sixth on singles by Tony Oliva and Jerry Terrell and a walk to Pat Bourque. When Danny Thompson walked, forcing in Oliva, Steve Mingorri relieved starter and loser Bruce Dal Canton, 89.

Foreman not worried over boxing legend

PLEASANTON, Calif. (UPI) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman may literally destroy a boxing legend when he faces Muhammad Ali in two weeks but he doesn't look at it that way.

"He (Ali) hasn't done any more for boxing than I have," Foreman said. "I don't consider him a legend and he's never been my idol. What he's done has been all for himself."

"Boxing has been going on for a long, long time and it's going to go on long after he's gone," Foreman said.

London Stock exchange, however, it appears likely that Kuwait, at least, is seeking to take over a national real estate concern. There is not a shopping list, said Stevenson. Nevertheless, speculation appeared to be assuming that all countries might follow Kuwait's lead. The cash offer for common shares of St. Martin's made at 1.40 pounds per share, representing a 22

Kellogg said the pilot program is the department's first attempt at getting a coordinated weed program underway. "We're starting with 10 counties and will expand to 20 counties next year," Kellogg said. "Eventually, we hope to have a coordinated program in effect for all counties covering all noxious weeds." Kellogg said that when weeds are not controlled "they result in as much as nearly 100 per cent loss of a grazing area or a row crop." He said he has estimated that weeds

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Plan how to put your biggest projects in operation. An emotional problem may arise so you feel imposed upon, but do the jobs facing you well.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle family matters diplomatically for fine results. Use right methods to have more efficiency at home. Take no chances with one with ulterior motives.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can solve problems that have been difficult for you to do in the past. Be ethical. The evening is particularly fine for the social side of things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your financial position, and you will know how to proceed instead of asking for advice. Listen to what an expert has to suggest, however. Try to please more in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get rid of anything annoying, or you won't accomplish much. A long telephone conversation with a new personality could prove most interesting in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A day to relax and study the progress you've made so you know what errors have to be corrected. Assist one who complains, and all is okay.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contact good friends and show how much you value them, especially if you haven't had much time for them lately. Also contact a group with interests like yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle civic affair well. Try to improve your credit. Make sure you study your financial position more carefully. Watch addition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Know just how to put those new ideas and plans to work more intelligently. A new associate may try to put a damper on them, but one who understands clears up the matter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Collect money. Pay bills. You have to be the aggressive one now where life-life is concerned. A pretty penny or two can help matters along.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit associate who feels in a maudlin mood to keep you from getting out into the world of action and producing in a.m. Steer clear of those who get in your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't procrastinate, or you never will get duties done. Take the right treatments to build up your energy.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Spend little for amusements and build up your reserve funds. Some creative matter can turn out to be most profitable as well as interesting. Work on it.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will do well in business, selling, manufacturing and such fields, or where inaugurating improvements in the educational or other professional fields is concerned. Teach early to get rid of that martyr complex and be more sure of self, to stand up for own rights. Sports are a must here, and so is music.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

On the list of most dangerous jobs, please include that of the traveling diamond salesman. I mean any of the numerous fellows who operate worldwide, out of New York City's 47th Street, the nation's diamond center. They travel in secret, under assumed names frequently, sometimes switching from plane to train to car to shake off possible followers. They carry hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of uncut stones on their persons. And every so often one of these undercover jewelry agents disappears. Sometime back, murderers killed three within three months in different cities, stripping them of almost a million dollars in gems.

JELLYFISH

Remember, even a dried out jellyfish dead for months can sting you badly, if you walk over it with bare feet. IT HAS LONG been said that low-flying swallows are a sign of impending bad weather. Quite so. Insects fly low in a humid atmosphere. The swallows swoop to the insects, that's all.

SIR, is your memory still as good as ever? If not, that's natural, evidently. Recent studies show that things called the "short term memory lapse" tends to crop up at two stages in life, one around age 40 and the other around age 60.

Q. "HOW CAN you tell whether an egg is fresh without breaking the shell?" A. Put it in a pan of cool salty water. If it sinks, it's infant new. If it hovers, it's middle-aged. If it rises, it's old before its time.

GRAPE

Here's to Ethiam Bull clink! — the fellow who perfected the Concord grape. And where did he do this? In Concord, Mass., unsurprisingly. In 1853. Ten years earlier, Ethiam planted the seeds of every known wild grape. That deep purple grape was by far the most successful, so he named it after his hometown. Unfortunately, Ethiam didn't know much about marketing his merchandise. His tombstone reads: "He sowed, others reaped."

CERTAINLY you know that Texas was one of the only two states which once were independent republics. But you name the other? Vermont, it went independent in 1777 under the name of New Connecticut.
